Housing Standards in Brooklyn: An Intensive Study of the Housing Records of 3227 Workingmen's Families (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By John C Gebhart

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Housing Standards in Brooklyn: An Intensive Study of the Housing Records of 3227 Workingmen's Families The method of procedure in this study differs from that of most housing surveys in that it approaches the problem from the point of view of the family rather than from that of the building. The average housing survey is replete with such information as the size and character of the building, the location of sanitary conveniences, but sadly lacking in definite information as to the families themselves, with respect to such items as the rental paid, the number of persons in family and their state of health. It is just this sort of material so vital to the whole problem that this survey seeks to supply. Besides, the method employed here limits the study to that group of working people who, for social and economic reasons, are not able to secure for themselves the kind of homes essential to their moral and physical welfare and to whom all attempts at housing reform are particularly addressed. This method was...
